DAVIS THEATRE.

Special Attractive Bill for Merchants' Week-Five Headline Acts and Feature Photoplays.

Visitors to Norwich this week will no doubt like to know where they can find suitable entertainment, and the management of this theatre extend a hearty invitation to all to come and see the show that has been provided for the first half of this notable week. The Davis theatre is one of the best equipped places of amusement in the state of Connecticut, and no other theatre in the state gives the value for the money that this theatre does. The bill arranged for this week is going to be the banner will of the season both in vaudeville and photoplays, no ex-pense having been spared to provide entertainment of the highest standard pense having been spared to provide entertainment of the highest standard for the visitors and our local patrons. Heading the bill is the Blanch Williams Trio in their own conception of mirth, music and melody. Miss Williams of this trio was the violin soloist for two years with John Philip Gousa's famous American band, and her solos are a real musical treat. Sterling and Norton are two clever mia. Is who present a novel singing and talking sketch called The New Maid. It was very entertaining act. Another headline feature is the We Us Trio, three elever colored entertainers, who do a lively hodge podge of comedy, singing and whirlwind dancing that will be sure to make a big hit. Green and Santonia, the Indian and the Cowboy, do a novelty unicycle act, doing many seemingly impossible stunts on the wheel, such as boxing, juggling, hoop rolling, etc., and a real Indian wardance on the unicycle. The fifth act is James Gaylord, a droll singing and tells stories in his own original way. In the photopiaxy there is a two-reel tomic feature called In the Days of In the photoplays there is a two-reel Domino feature called In the Days of the Padres. In the Spider's Web is a poverful Majestic drama, and The Chicken Chaser is the Keystone comedy. Matinee at 2.50; all seats 10c. Don't fail to visit Norwich's representative theatre. sentative theatre.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

The Adventures of Kathfyn, Second in Colonial's Big Series.

Everyone will remember pretty Kath-Everyone will remember pretty Kathlyn of last week and her wonderful and thrilling adventures, which included her being forced upon the throne of a fantastical oriental country. She is the daughter of a collector of wild animals, and her knowledge of their habits and temperaments makes her fearless of them. Here she is in a big strange country, occupying a throne, and about to become the unwilling bride of a native, who hopes thus to get control of his people. She has made friends with some people of this country who, possessed of more education, appreciate her position, and, betion, appreciate her position, and, because of kindnesses she has shown them, become her willing slaves. She refuses to become the bride of the dark-skinned fellow and is threatened to be thrown into the big arona where to be thrown into the big arona where the lions will make short work of her. By clever strategy, land mines are placed in the arena under cover of might and just as the lions are about to devour her electricians turn on the fatal current, and the earth is thrown high in the air, leaving a ravine between Kathlyn and the ferocious lions. The Powers of the Air is a big Edison wireless feature. Hughey Mack appears in a rollicking comedy. Scotland Forever, and Conquered Hate is a completing Patheplay. The free performance this morning is a special one and is in no way to be confused as resembling the matines bill. sembling the matinee bill.

AUDITORIUM

Lovers of the best in motion pictures

Presents Cecelia Loftus in A Lady of Quality.

Lovers of the best in motion pictures will be delighted at the fine feature photoplay that is being offered at the Auditorium for today and tomorrow. Following its principle of giving only the best of the hundreds of films on the market, the Auditorium now offers Daniel Frohman's production of A Lady of Quality, by Frances Hodgson Burnett, and with Miss Cecelia Loftus in the title role. A Lady of Quality, as everyone knows who has seen the play or read the book, is an idyllic blending of the romance, beauty and daring of the days of knighthood.

A brief synopsis of the story is as follows: Sir Jeoffrey, a dissolute roue, has unlimited contempt for the oppohas unlimited contempt for the oppo has unlimited contempt for the oppo-sits sex, which exen extends to his own deaghters. Upon the death of her mother his child Clorinda is brought up among the servants and Sir Jeoffrey does not come in contact with his daugater until her sixth year. Her spirit and daving attract his attention and he has her dressed in boy's clothes and she learns to swear, drink and smoke. Years later she meets the and smoke. Years later she meets the Duke of Osmonde and other great gen-tlemen, who are shocked at her mantlemen, who are shocked at her manners. Go realizes her reckless habits. Meanwhile Sir John Oxon wagers that he has her heart, not as a hoyden, but as a woman. In a duel with Clo, Sir John is badly worsted and she then declares she is through with men's attire and habits, and thereafter she appears in the fine attire of a lady of quality. Her subsequent adventures, which include her marriage, her love for the Duke of Osmonde and the killing of Sir John, make up one of the for the Duke of Osmonde and the kill-ing of Eir John, make up one of the most romantic plays seen upon stage or screen. An all star Broadway cast, elaborate stage settings, and the care-ful direction of the Famous Players Film company make this a photoplay masterpiece.

A Lady of Quality will be shown three times daily, at the usual Auditorium prices.

On Wednesday and Thursday, The Wages of Sin, a timely moral offering, acted by Jack Rose, Sam Schepps and Harry Vallon will be shown.

LYCEUM THEATRE, NEW LONDON

George Arliss in Disraeli. George Arliss in Louis N. Parker's comedy. Disraeli, under the management of the Liebler company, is the straelies at the Lycom, New London. Thursday evening, April 23.

Mr. Farker shows Disraell at a period when he is no more the spectacular young Jew, the author of romantic novels and the wearer of startling waistcoats, but an astute statesman, whose warmth of oriental imagination is concentrated on making his country an imperial world power. The historic incident of the buying of the Suez caval from the dissolute Khedive of Egypt, and the saving to England thereby of the short route to India, is chosen by Mr. Parker as the central theme of the play. The intrigue that arises is absorbingly dramatic and deeply interesting. Incidental to this political plot is a delightful love story and the shrewd statesman is shown making a man of a young aristocrat that he might be worthy the heart and hand of a true English damsel.

The production is elaborate scenically and the costumes of the period, the early 70's, lend the play attractive pictorial qualities.

Mr. Arliss' company includes Gladys Aryme, Margaret Dale, Florence Arliss, Leila Repton, Lilla Campbell, Charles Harbury, Arthur Eldred, Henry Carvill, Vincent Sternroyd, Dudley Digges and others.

This world ain't being run the way
It should be run, it seems to me;
I wish that I could have my say
I'd fix things as they ought to be.
I'd start by makin' all the kings
Give up their thrones and earn their keep;
I'd set the queens to doin' things
Where life was hard and labor cheap.

I'd make Caruso go to work,
And give John D. a job somewhere
As butcher's boy or grocer's clerk,
And he would have small wages
there;
I'd try to have the parents trained
So they would do what they were told;
The Wall street sharks would all be chained
Just out of reach of piles of gold.

The Vanderbilts would waik the track
Instead of livin easy lives,
And I would make them all go back
And take up with their former wives;
Gee, but I'd rip things up and down.
I'd soon rob money of its charms,
And all the folks who live in town
Would have to go and run the farms, I'd stop the wars in every land. And give the poor a chance to play; I'd make the armies all disband. And end the navies right away; If I could have the say I'd be. The greatest pitcher in the world. And not a batter facin me. Would ever hit a ball I huried.

Mrs Biewer-Blud-That tallor or Mrs Blewer-Blud—That tallor or yours is getting very familiar. He had the insolence to salute me on the street today. I think such people should be kept at a distance. Mr. Blewer-Blud—Well, my dear, I'm sure I've done all I could. I've stood that man off now for two years.—Puck.

Since the wireless telegraph apparatus was first rendered practicable in 1886 it has been gradually perfected and its use has extended to every large body of water and to many large land areas. In such regions as South America and Africa, where the construction and maintenance of the ordinary wire telegraph lines are difficult it is proving of value for land communication: ing of value for land communication; but its greatest service has, or course, been heret fore on the oceans, particularly the Atlantic and Pacific
